To support our learning and as part of our topic, 'Woodland Wonders' we would like to create an interest table display in the outdoor classroom where the children can handle, examine and explore the 'Autumn Treasures'. We'd really like to encourage the children to contribute to our hands-on display with unusual seeds, nuts, seasonal fruits and a rainbow of leaves in different shapes and sizes. We look forward to sharing your exciting finds!

This week...

We began the week by looking at the work of British Land Artist and environmentalist, Andy Goldsworthy. Using his work as inspiration, we worked cooperatively in small groups to create our own land art using the natural materials found in our Forest School and the surrounding area. We have been discussing the four seasons and focusing on the characteristics of Autumn. We have learned how animals, plants, the weather and people are affected by the seasonal changes. We wrote facts about Autumn and looked closely at an Autumn picture for an activity called: 'I see, I think, I wonder'. For this we had to talk about what we could see in the picture, what we thought was happening and discuss our 'wonderings'. As part of our literacy, we worked in our groups to compose a piece of shared writing - A Harvest 'Thank you' prayer. Firstly, we considered the importance of saying 'thank you' and contemplated the many reasons for being grateful for all that we have. Throughout the week we have been having fun learning a Harvest song called 'What have we brought for harvest time?' and recorded our performance wearing the Harvest crowns we'd made from printing a repeating pattern using fruits/vegetables in Autumn colours.

Pori Drwy Stori

Next week will be sending home magazines from the Pori Drwy Stori programme called, 'The Pori Drwy Stori Rhyme Challenge' and 'My Weather Watch Calendar.'

Pori Drwy Stori is an exciting bilingual programme, funded by the Welsh Government and designed by BookTrust Cymru, aimed at supporting children's literacy and numeracy as they start Reception class in all maintained schools in Wales.

The programme supports parents and carers to play an active role in their children's learning through sharing rhymes and songs, enjoying books together, playing number games and completing fun activities.

The fun activities are linked to the Foundation Phase and Literacy and Numeracy Framework outcomes and encourage children to practice key skills through playing games with a parent or carer.

We hope that you enjoy the activities and playing the games.
